SUMMARY:

The need for health care practitioners to base their work on the best available research is growing. Systematic reviews and meta-analyses were given top priority in the research hierarchy. due to its growing use of evidence-based methodology. Our systematic review is merely a type of study that offers an overview of medical reports on a certain clinical issue while employing unique techniques to systematically explore, critically evaluate, and synthesize the literature. The systematic review enables us to consider the full spectrum of relevant findings on the research of the specific subject, rather than just the outcomes of one or two studies. Following a systematic review, quantitative data from individual research may be gathered and reanalyzed using recognized statistical techniques known as meta-analysis. The significance of systematic reviews and meta-analyses was thus emphasized in this programme, along with the need for participants to be able to critically evaluate review article methodology as well as the application of the findings to their own patients.

WORKSHOP ON REGENERATIVE PROCEDURES

Venue: Department of Periodontics

No.of students attended:20

Faculty: Dr.Karthikeyan, Assistant Professor

Date: 13/9/21

Phone no.9704824600

Summary:

If left untreated, periodontal disease is a very serious, degenerative disorder that can cause tooth loss. The bacterial infection in the gum pockets that results in periodontal disease causes the bone and gum tissue to pull away from the teeth. As the gum pockets deepen, both the quantity and quality of bone and gum tissue are significantly diminished. Fortunately, early detection and efficient regenerative treatments can stop the disease's progression and save the teeth. To cure the gums, bone, and teeth, numerous regenerative dentistry techniques are available. The most popular regenerating techniques are as follows: Bone regeneration, Gum tissue regeneration, pocket reduction surgery, scaling and rootplaning.

Summary:

Border moulding is an important step in the process of complete denture. Border moulding gives retention to the complete denture. Recording the movements of the buccal and labial mucosa should be followed for a proper border moulding and the final impression should be recorded properly while taking an impression with ZOE MATERIAL. Though there are many final impression materials, ZOE is the mostly used one. To ensure a proper retention of the complete denture this step should be done without making any faults.

Summary:

Local anaesthesia, also called local anesthetic, is usually a one –time injection of medicine that numbs a small area. Patient will be awake and alert, and may feel some pressure, but won't feel pain in the area being treated. With local anaesthesia, side effects and complications are rare and usually minor. LA is also used to relieve pain after surgery. As budding dentists, students have to learn the techniques and also should be aware of the side effects and should know how to treat those.

Summary:

Forensic odontology is a challenging branch in the field of dentistry. This branch has evolved so much now a days and playing a decent role in identification of victims in legal cases as well as for the identification purposes in mass disasters etc. In these circumstances lip prints are playing a vital role in the identification process. Many such cases have been recorded that the culprits or victims have been recognized using the lip prints. In this modern era many procedures has come to lime light and many have been discovered which are helpful and gives approximate results in the identification procedures. Not only an odontologist or oral pathologist but a dentist also should be aware of the procedures that are to be done and how the lip prints are recorded for different purposes.

SUMMARY:

Oral and maxillofacial surgery is the most difficult and complicated of the many specialities available in dentistry. The Department of OMFS at Kims Dental College in Amalapuram has organised this workshop to get things going in that area, especially among undergraduate and the postgraduate students. Oral pathologists, oral surgeons work together to operate tumors, cysts and other pathologies to achieve at a proper diagnosis and treatment planning. A two-day session was held with this idea in mind. The first day began with interactive lectures and common case discussions, and the second day featured postgraduate students' hands-on work. The most effective activity was carried out at the ideal time.

Summary:

Staining is the important step in diagnosing a given tissue. Improper staining techniques gives artefacts and mislead the diagnosis of the biopsy. So as to enhance a proper identification of the tissue these staining techniques plays a key role. Basic stains like H&E and special stains like PAS etc and other special stains are used for identification of carbohydrates, proteins, collagen etc., in the given biopsy. Students have to be aware of basic stains used for identification as well as the special staining procedures.

SUMMARY:

Among the profuse specializations in the field of dentistry, Oral and Maxillofacial surgery stands at the utmost complicated and strenuous one. To line something up in that field particularly among the Undergraduate students, this workshop has been conducted by the Department of OMFS, Kims Dental college, Amalapuram. Orthognathic surgeries are specifically related to the dental management by a joint action of Orthodontist and the Oral surgeons. In this perspective, a two-day programme was conducted. It started with interactive lectures and typical case discussions on the very first day followed by the Hands-on work on the second day by the postgraduates. It was the most successful task done right at the appropriate moment.

PERIODONTICS RAPID REVIEW PROGRAM

Date:06.04.22

Venue: Lecture Gallery 1

SUMMARY:

Rapid reviews are a form of evidence synthesis that may provide more timely information for decision making compared with standard systematic reviews. Usually, they were being conducted for the post graduate students since years, but a new initiative was taken by the KIMS dental college, Amalapuram to make the rapid review programs available for the undergraduates as well for the well being of the students. We hope it will be a torchbearer for conducting as such programs in the other colleges or so in the future. It was a 3 day program held up by the staff of the Department of Periodontics, and about 15 speakers and Special lecture by Dr.Shiva Manjunath sir on the last day of the program. This program had become a grand success ultimately and we hope to conduct for many such programs.

SEMINAR ON PATENT LAW

Date: 03.03.2022

Venue: Lecture Gallery 1

Faculty: Dr.V.Avinash, Assistant Professor

Number of students attended:20

SUMMARY:

The dental profession has long had to deal with practical issues related to the patenting of manufacturing processes for substances and devices used in disease prevention, diagnosis, and treatment. Due to intense research in the field and ongoing competition, dentistry has recently become interested in the area of intellectual property rights and patents. The most recent inventions in the world today are all being made in the field of dentistry, yet they are unable to achieve their full social worth because of ignorance of IPR and patents. This programme focused on helping dental professionals involved in research and development understand IPR and patents in general. As a result, this would also serve as a dental all.

SEMINAR ON CBCT

Venue: Lecture Gallery -1

No.of students attended:15

Faculty: Dr.Suma Latha, Professor

Date:22/2/22

Phone no.7678934333

Summary:

A seminar was conducted by Dr.Suma latha professor oral medicine and radiology department.Radiology is important in the diagnostic assessment of the dental patient. 3D diagnostic imaging of the jaws has been of interest since introduction of CT as a clinical tool. Because of relatively high cost, high dose, and availability limited to hospitals and medical radiology practices, use of this technology in dentistry has been limited. Students have been educated on the importance of the CBCT and uses of the CBCT.

SUMMARY:

To raise awareness among the students of CRRI, this programme was run. Rarely do patients and dental healthcare professionals spread infectious diseases to one another. Standard safety measures are created to safeguard oral health care professionals and to stop them from infecting patients with pathogens that can be conveyed through blood or other bodily fluids. Patients who use antimicrobial mouth rinses prior to normal dental procedures want to lower the quantity of oral germs in the aerosols produced by those procedures. Preprocedural rinse might additionally lessen the quantity of bacteria that are injected into the patient's circulation during invasive dental treatments.

Venue: Department of Endodontics

No.Of students Attended: 26

Faculty: Dr.Jyothsna, Assistant Professor

Date: 8/1/22

Phone no.7330783286

Summary:

A workshop was conducted for undergraduate students on placement of rubberdam. Treatment procedures and cavity preparations are made easy with rubberdam placement. Students should have awareness on using all the advanced techniques as budding dentists will be able to tackle the patient during all the conditions. Such type of programmes should be conducted for students skills to improve.

SUMMARY:

Prior to critically analyzing the article, the topic of critical evaluation of scientific research was mostly addressed to postgraduate students and interns in order to improve how to produce a scientific study. Despite the growing number of scientific publications, many doctors find that they have less time to study what others have written. However, selecting, reading, and critically evaluating publications is still important to keep current in one's profession. Understanding the statistical approach was also necessary for the interpretation and evaluation of the publication based on its medical content. This programme therefore focused on the fundamental idea of analyzing scholarly publications in terms of experimental, clinical, and epidermal investigations. This programme provided new postgraduate students and incoming postgraduate students (interns) with information on how to choose their research.

Summary:

Scaling and root planning is a deep cleaning below the gum line used to treat gum disease. Root planning is done to remove the plaque in the root area. It may take more than one visit and may require a local anesthetic. Good dental care is essential to help prevent gum diseases. Visiting dentist at regular intervals will prevent the problems and also reduce the risk of disease severity.

Summary:

Restoring the edentulous area of maxilla or mandible with implants has become a normal treatment today. These procedure don't require extensive augmentation. They can be placed with a flapless technique and can be combined with any implant. They can be used for conventional surgical procedures. Further studies has to be done to know the extensive purpose and uses of basal implants.

Summary:

Tooth impaction is a pathological situation where a tooth fails to attain its normal functional position. Impacted third molars are commonly encountered in routine dental practice. The impaction rate is higher for third molars when compared with other teeth. The most common angulation of impaction in the mandible was mesioangular impaction followed by horizontal, vertical and distoangular impaction.
