Date: 03.11.2020

Venue: Lecture Gallery 1

Faculty: Dr.G.Karteek, Associate Professor

Number of students attended:15

Phone no.9550214164

SUMMARY:

A patent is a set of rights given exclusively to an individual by an independent nation to the inventor or discoverer for a given duration in exchange for detailed information on the details of the inventions or the discovery. The dental profession has long had to deal with practical issues related to the patenting of manufacturing processes for substances and devices used in disease prevention, diagnosis, and treatment. Due to intense research in the field and ongoing competition, dentistry has recently become interested in the area of intellectual property rights and patents. The most recent inventions in the world today are all being made in the field of dentistry, yet they are unable to achieve their full social worth because of ignorance of IPR and patents. This program focused on helping dental professionals involved in research and development understand IPR and patents in general. As a result, this would also serve as a dental all.

Summary:

A workshop was conducted on Aligners by Dr.Vasudevan in the department of orthodontics. It started with an interactive lecture followed by a workshop. Aligners are most widely used these days in place of metal or ceramic brackets. Aligners are the most advanced, esthetic, easy to wear appliance and patient friendly. They are mostly recommended by the orthodontists these days. As these are the advancements in the dentistry these days students must be aware of all the advances.

SEMINAR ON RESEARCH METHODOLOGY

VENUE: Gallery-1

No.of students attended:15

Faculty: Dr.Avinash, Assistant Professor

Date:01/04/21

Phone no.7993681227

Summary:

The curriculum mainly concentrated on field studies, clinical/experimental research, and study on literacy. The types and goals of study were fully explained. The components and approaches for each sort of research were thoroughly discussed to the dental students in their first year. The training also covered how to follow and formulate research criteria for ICMR, WHO, and other organisations. The session concluded with a discussion of biosafety issues in dentistry research, including hood lab procedures, scientific objectivity, a code of conduct, and plagiarism. The emphasis on how to paraphrase the research's material in order to eliminate plagiarism was eventually brought up when the topic of plagiarism came up.

SEMINAR ON CRITICAL EVALUATION OF SCIENTIFIC LITERATURE

Date: 13.04.2021

Venue: Lecture Gallery 1

Faculty: Dr.V.Avinash, Assistant Professor

Number of students attended: 10

Phone no.7993681227

SUMMARY:

Prior to critically analysing the article, the topic of critical evaluation of scientific research was mostly addressed to postgraduate students and interns in order to improve how to produce a scientific study. A selection, reading, and critical appraisal of publications are still important to keep current in one's area despite the fact that more physicians are finding themselves with less time to study what others have written despite an increase in scientific publication. The publication's interpretation and evaluation, which are based on its medical content, also required knowledge of the statistical approach. This programme gave newly graduated postgraduates and aspiring postgraduates advice on how to choose their research topics.
